

CPTI History

Origins

In 1993 Richard Reynolds founded the Edinburgh Institute for Counselling & Psychotherapy (EICP). From 1995 EICP offered the TA101 Introduction to Transactional Analysis and standalone training workshops; over several years these workshops developed into organised training. In 2001 the training programme was separated from the provision of counselling and psychotherapy and Richard founded the Counselling & Psychotherapy

Training Institute (CPTI).

With CPTI a more formally structured programme was developed to ensure compliance with the requirements of the European Association for Transactional Analysis (EATA), represented in the UK by the Institute of Transactional Analysis (ITA) and the United Kingdom Council for Psychotherapy of which the ITA is a member organisation

Development

In 2001 Helen Ralston joined Richard Reynolds as Development Manager and in 2004 became a partner and was appointed Training Development Director. Helen has taken the lead in obtaining a broader professional and academic recognition of our training programmes. In this we have successfully obtained validation of our Counselling Diploma by COSCA, the Scottish body for overseeing counselling and validation by Queen Margaret

University in Edinburgh for two masters degrees, an MSc in TA Counselling and an MSc in TA Psychotherapy in conjunction with the CTA. The CTA is the professional TA qualification that leads to registration with the UKCP. We are now validating with Napier University two further degree courses; these are PG Certificate, PG Diploma and MSc in Brief Intervention Psychological Therapies and Professional Supervision.

Current Programme

Currently CPTI offer the diploma in counselling, the CTA professional psychotherapy certification and the two Transactional Analysis based MSc degrees. The Brief Intervention Psychological Therapies MSc commences in October and the MSc in Professional Supervision in January 2009. In addition a programme of short CPD courses are held on a range of applications both for CPTI trainees and other professionals. CPTI provides two stand alone introductory courses the TA101

Introduction to Transactional Analysis and an Introduction to Counselling with Motivational Interviewing.

The programme is managed by Richard and Helen, the partners supported by Sandra Crow, Administration Manager who heads the administrative staff and Mark Widdowson who as Training Director leads a team of qualified and experienced trainers.
